

The spirit of David's entrepreneurial diversification is the hallmark of Southpaw Studio. His talents and gifts have taken him to many pinnacles of creative energy. At age 11, as a taxidermist David modeled and sculpted the animals around his rural home. Drawing from this knowledge was the seed that began to grow into what today has been a wonderfully blessed career.

Bollman received his first commissions in high school, painting his teachers pet portraits. He later graduated from Center for Creative Studies and after 12 years as an art director had gained enough knowledge and discipline to fulfill his passion and lifelong dream to become a full time artist. For over three decades David has designed, lettered and painted murals on everything from semi-trucks to full-scale walls. He has designed corporate logos, hand-carved signs, and created numerous unique sculptures. He has been commissioned by Ducks Unlimited, Waterfowl U.S.A., and Safari Club International and many more to do special paintings and limited edition prints. Bollman is the first and only artist to design and cast a bronze medallion that depicts his award winning duck stamp design.

David's numerous awards and credits include:
